

Singaporean street food gets an American Zip code

In New York, Urban Hawker houses stalls for pulled coffee, Hainanese chicken and more | F3

REY LOPEZ FOR THE WASHINGTON POST

THE UPGRADE

Travel writer says there's no reason to dismiss simple joys of airplane food. F2

FLYING

Do airlines really have only two seats left? Experts debunk 5 flight-booking myths. F4

DISNEY

People have called on the company to leave Florida, but doing so isn't so simple. F5

COMICS

It can be nerve-racking to take kids to art museums, but this illustrator says it's worth it. F6

Laksa soup from Daisy's Dream. The stall is one of 17 at Urban Hawker, a complex for Singaporean food.